We have developed a great system for keeping the students organized and getting them prepared for junior high. The students will not need to bring in anything else. We will take care of the rest. We will ask students to take home any additional supplies they bring in. Don't worry, all of the supplies will go home at the end of the year. Thank you for supporting our efforts. Gotta love fifth grade!

Summer To-Do List What should your young scholar be doing this summer? Well, besides having fun and staying safe, there are a plethora of things to do that will help ensure a great start to fifth grade.

Read, read, read every day! Current Lexile levels can found by logging into Reading Counts at library staphx.org. Click "Check Your Progress" instead of "Take a Quiz". A pdf will open with current tests (if any) and the Lexile will be in a box on the left hand side under student name.

Students should be entering fifth grade with a Lexile of 740 or higher. The public libraries are open all summer and the books are waiting to fly off the shelves!

Write, write, write every day! Students should be able to write a five sentence paragraph which includes a topic sentence, three supporting details and a conclusion sentence upon entering fifth grade. Each sentence should include a subject and predicate (verb) with a capital letter and period. What should the students write about? How about something that happens each day or what they read about each day. A journal is a great place to do this, so here's one on us! Writing on the lines, inside the lines, margin to margin will also help keep handwriting from getting rusty and keep spelling fresh.

Just in case, we've included a list of fifth grade "no excuse" words every fifth grader should know how to spell. Study, study, study math facts every day! Students should have all four operations (+, -, *, .) memorized up to the tens when fifth grade starts.

Flashcards are really easy to make and work wonders. All it takes is five minutes a day!

Of course there are many websites to check out too. Just google "math facts" and take your pick.

We are already getting excited about next year. It will be here before you know it. 5th Grade Rocks!
